BCC Has Strong Economic Impact on Area

College Generates 8 Times More Spending Than It Costs

Broome Community College generated eight times more spending volume in Broome County than it cost the County Government during the 1975-76 fiscal year, according to a recently completed study, entitled "The Economic Impacts of the College on the Local Community."

The study also disclosed that if there were no college here, County Government would not save any tax money and county business would lose about $16,500,000 in sales.

The study was conducted by Professors Richard Romano and Norman Herbert of BCC's economics faculty, and it was funded by the college's Alumni Association.

"In the study, we have shown that the college is an economic as well as educational asset to the community," Romano said.

Specifically, it shows that operating the college in the 1975-76 year cost Broome County Government 1.3 million dollars, but the total business generated by college activity in that year was 10.7 million dollars.

This large impact is due to the fact that the College finances 70% of its budget with dollars from outside the County. This is new money coming into Broome County and once it gets here a good deal of it tends to stay here and is recirculated in our local economy.

The study also shows that if the College were closed it would have resulted in 16.5 million dollars of lost sales for Broome County businesses in 1975-76. This lost business takes into account the reduction in local spending that would occur when families have to send their sons and daughters to colleges outside the county.

The study also showed that if the College were eliminated the local sponsor would not save the $1.3 million it contributes to the College's operation, because state law would require that it pay out approximately that amount to educate those young people at other community colleges in the state.

Romano and Herbert point out that the primary function of a college is educational — "to educate and turn out knowledgeable, creative, productive and responsible citizens."

They also note that there are long-term economic benefits of a college as the graduates become a more informed part of the community, and probably earn more money and hence pay higher taxes in later years.

But their purpose in this study was to assess the short-term economic impact of the college on the community. "We were surprised to discover what a potent impact BCC has on the economy of Broome County," they said.

"And we were absolutely

County Grants Modified Plan C

The tight fiscal controls that Plan A impose on the operation of Broome Community College were finally relaxed a bit by the Broome County Legislature this spring.

By a 16-2 vote, the Legislature gave the college a modified Plan C method of operation — for a two-year trial period.

Plan A calls for line-by-line financial control of the college by the County Legislature, which is the college's sponsor. A full Plan C gives the college the leeway to use the money budgeted at the start of the fiscal year with much greater flexibility.

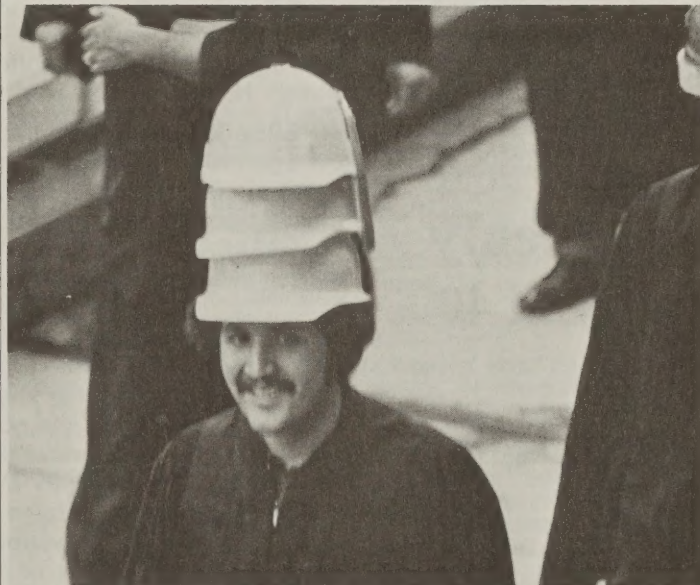

BCC has been trying to move from Plan A to Plan C for more than 20 years, and the first step was accomplished this year. A special committee of the Legislature, chaired by Donald M. Flanagan, met for almost a year with a committee of the BCC Board of Trustees, and they finally reached agreement on this modified Plan C.

Though far short of the college's goal, this plan was called "the first step toward a full Plan C" by BCC President Peter Blomerley and BCC Board of Trustees chairman Carl R. Gitlitz. They interpreted the change as a vote of confidence by the County Legislature in the BCC Board of Trustees.

The changes include:

- Authorization to hire employees at salaries up to 25% above the minimum salary for the position, with only the approval of the Employees Committee of the Legislature

First Increase Since '73 Puts Tuition at $700

For the first time in four years, tuition at Broome Community College will be raised. Tuition for the 1977-78 academic year has been increased from $650 to $700 a year. Since tuition is payable at the beginning of each of the college's two semesters, it comes to $350 per semester.

The tuition is still well below the legal limit of $750 per year, as BCC trustees and officials are still attempting to keep it as low as possible.

The $350 per semester tuition is the charge for residents of Broome County and the other counties in New York State. Out-of-state residents will have to pay $700 per semester or $1,400 per year.

Part-time student tuition has also been increased — from $25 per credit hour to $27 per semester for New York State residents. The charge is double that for out-of-state residents — or $54 per semester.

The BCC Board of Trustees passed the tuition increase at the June meeting.

Five Groups Honor Pufky by Establishing Funds in His Memory

The unexpected death in April of Robert N. Pufky, BCC's popular director of admission, has had a profound effect on many people. And it has moved at least five groups to establish memorial funds in his honor.

These groups include his colleagues at BCC, the students at the college, the high school guidance counselors of the area, and his fellow Rotarians in the Hillcrest Rotary Club.

The funds established are:

- The Robert N. Pufky Memorial Scholarship for Handicapped Students at BCC. This fund was established by the students at the college, and in announcing it at graduation, United Student Government President Kathi Scott described "Mr. Pufky as a man who always cared."

She revealed that the students were putting $3,000 into the fund to start it, and that the interest only would be used to help handicapped students entering the college. This was the students' graduation gift to the college.

"The $3,000 is a starting base," Ms. Scott said. "We welcome all contributions."

- A collection for Pufky's family was contributed by his colleagues at BCC.

- The BCC students also made a cash contribution to the Pufky family, as they held a special mixer for this purpose.

- The two organizations of high school guidance counselors in the area have started a scholarship fund for Pufky's three children who range in age from 7 to 12. These are the Binghamton Area Association of Student Personnel Services (BAASPS) and the Southern Tier Personnel and Guidance Association.

- The Hillcrest Rotary Club, of which Pufky was vice-president, has established the Robert Pufky Award in the form of an annual $200 scholarship to a deserving senior at Chenango Valley High School who has been accepted at Broome Community College.

Trustees Honor Pufky

The Board of Trustees of Broome Community College unanimously passed the following resolution in praise of Robert N. Pufky:

WHEREAS, Robert N. Pufky served Broome Community College with great distinction as its Director of Admissions for 10 years, during which the College's greatest enrollment growth took place, and WHEREAS, the College suffered a great loss when he passed away with shocking suddenness on April 16, 1977, and

WHEREAS, he unselfishly gave his time and talents in performing many extra duties, such as chairing and serving on more than his share of committees and being available to people in the community who sought information about college admissions at other colleges as well as at Broome Community College, and

WHEREAS, he demonstrated great versatility of ability by serving the College at various times as Coordinator of Student Affairs, teacher of Psychology and acting Vice President of Student Affairs, as well as Director of Admissions, and

WHEREAS, his fine sense of humor, cheerful disposition, sincerity and reliability enabled him to maintain excellent rapport with colleagues on the campus, high school guidance counsellors and applicants for admission to the College and their parents, and

WHEREAS, he was deeply respected, highly regarded and well liked,

BE IT THEREFORE RESOLVED, That this Board of Trustees on behalf of the College extends its profound sympathy to his wife, Rosemary Pufky, and their children, John, Diane and Kathleen, and to his parents, Mrs. and Mrs. Michael Pufky, and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, That the Board awards him emeritus status for his loyal and effective years of performance at the College, and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, That the Board publicly proclaims that the College was indeed fortunate to have Robert Pufky in the key post of Director of Admissions during the important 10-year period from 1967 to 1977.

Death Came Suddenly To Robert Pufky at 40

He felt good on the last day of his life. He came to work in the morning, and he was his usually cheerful self. He played tennis during the lunch hour, and spoke enthusiastically in the afternoon about the dance he and his wife were going to that evening. There wasn't the faintest indication that he wouldn't be in to work again.

And then shortly after midnight, on April 16, Bob Pufky collapsed while dancing. It seemed like a heart attack, and three experienced people spent more than half an hour giving him cardio-pulmonary resuscitation.

But he never responded, because he died of a floating blood clot — an embolism.

Bob Pufky, the popular and capable director of admissions at Broome Community College, died at the very premature age of 40.

Everyone who knew him was shocked, stunned and saddened — his colleagues at BCC, the high school guidance counselors he dealt with, the many BCC applicants through the years, his fellow Rotary Club members, his many friends and relatives.

Of course, those hit the hardest were his wife, Rosemary, his three children John, Diane and Kathleen, ages 12 to 7, and his mother and father.

Bob Pufky came to BCC in 1963 as coordinator of student activities and part-time teacher of psychology. After two years, he left to attend Syracuse University and earn his Masters degree. He then returned to BCC in 1967 and served the college for 10 years as director of admissions.

He also was acting vice-president for student affairs for eight months during the 1975-76 college year.

A native of Johnson City, he had earned his baccalaureate degree from SUNY College at Oswego, was a U.S. Navy veteran, and was vice-president of the Hillcrest Rotary Club at the time of his passing.

Over 1,000 Enrolled in Summer Courses

1,036 Students Exclusive of Mini Courses

With summertime being vacation time, many people are surprised to learn that more than 1,000 people are busily engaged in taking credit courses at the BCC campus during the current Summer Session.

The enrollment in these credit courses numbered 1,036 during the first week of classes. And that figure is sure to rise, as there will be a second session starting on July 25.

In addition, there are two series of non-credit mini courses — one starting in the middle of July and the other early in August.

As usual, most of the students in these courses are residents of Broome County, and many are regular students at out-of-town colleges.

SUNY Award In Teaching to BCC's Firenze

Richard F. Firenze, assistant professor of biology at Broome Community College, has been honored by receiving the SUNY Chancellor's Award for Excellence in Teaching.

He is one of 63 faculty members of the State University of New York's 64 campuses to be cited.

The award carries with it a $500 grant to recipients.

Criteria for the award were effective classroom teaching techniques, scholarship in the field or discipline, good relationships with students, and success in helping them achieve academic excellence.

Firenze is the second BCC faculty member to earn this award in the five years it has been given. The late Gabriel O. Cappellucci was so honored

In making the announcement at graduation of this special scholarship to perpetuate the memory of BCC's director of admissions who died in April, United Student Government President Kathi Scott stressed that contributions from outsiders would be most welcome.

All contributions will become part of the fund, from which the interest will be used each year to provide scholarships for deserving handicapped students at BCC.

Librarian Joan Foley Retires After 30 Years at BCC

Joan L. Foley, one of the "originals" at Broome Community College, has retired after 30 years of service to the college and the community.

She was one of the people who was hired before the first classes began in September of 1947. While the library was her area, she performed many and diverse duties.

She has been library clerk, director of the library and librarian, as well as serving on all major committees of the college, chaperoning many student trips and functions, and being advisor to a number of student groups.

She was responsible, too, for many years for keeping the library's acquisitions current with the growing number of curricula at the college.

She has also been active in the community college movement statewide during its pioneering years and since. She has been a long-standing member of the NY State Association of Junior Colleges, a founding member of the Two-Year Units Librarians group, and a producing member of many committees of the State University of New York.

She is a native of New York City, and she went to college at what is now the SUNY College at Oneonta, as well as the SUNY College at Geneseo.

Joan will continue to live in Binghamton and will "now have a chance to do those many things that I have always wanted to do and just didn't have time for."

We wish her good luck and good health in her retirement.

New Department Heads Named

Three new department heads have been named at Broome Community College and 17 were reappointed, effective at the start of the fall semester, which begins August 29.

The three new chairpersons, who have two-year terms, are:

- James Spalik in the Chemistry and Chemical Technology Department. He is a graduate of BCC who has his Masters degree from Clarkson, and he has been on the BCC faculty for 13 years.

- Dr. Frederick Johnson in the Dental Hygiene Department. He has been the consulting dentist at BCC for the last three years.

- Marcia Kucera in the Secretarial Sciences Department.

ment. She has been on the BCC faculty since 1972.

Ten of the department chairpersons have been given three-year appointments and 10 have been named for two-year terms. The reason for the difference is to eliminate having to fill all 20 positions at the same time in the future.

The 10 with the three-year terms are:

Stephen Steele in Civil Technology, Herbert Durst in Mechanical Technology, Robert Reid in Electrical Technology, Jack Foster in Engineering Science and Physics, Paul Chambers in Humanities, Charles Quagliata in English, Thomas Rossi in Marketing, George Ferrari in Biological Sciences and Medical Laboratory Technology, Nancy Button in Radiologic Technology, Florence Ewanow in Nursing.

Those given two-year appointments are:

Mary Diegert in Mathematics, Douglas Garnar in History and Government, Richard Romano in Social Sciences, Ozmun Winters in Physical Education, Ralph Newton in Accounting and Business Administration, Mary Rosato in Medical Record Technology, Mary Schum in Medical Office Assistant, in addition to Spalik, Dr. Johnson and Kucera.

BCC Alumnus is Only Male Graduate at Keuka

EDITORS NOTE — Our thanks to Karen McMahon [LA-68] for sending us a copy of a feature story in The Geneva Times about Scott Quincy Garfield, RN-75 at BCC. The following is based on that story.

Karen, incidentally, is now the associate director of admissions at Keuka.

A Broome Community College graduate was the only male student to graduate from Keuka College this spring. Scott Quincy Garfield received his baccalaureate degree along with 129 women.

"Keuka is still an all women's college," Garfield explained, "but the nursing program must accept males because the government mandates that any health science program must be non-discriminatory in enrollment."

Keuka College is located in Keuka Park, N.Y., near Penn Yan

Garfield is a 1975 graduate of BCC's nursing curriculum, and he said he chose Keuka College because of the fine reputation of its nursing program. "It was highly recommended by some of my instructors at BCC," he said.

Although Scott was the only male student among the 600 women at the college, he did not play the field socially. He dated only one Keuka girl in his two years there, and then he married her. Virginia graduated this spring also.

Scott has been accepted at the Yale Graduate School of Nursing for the fall.

Alumni Re-Elect James Sarpolis

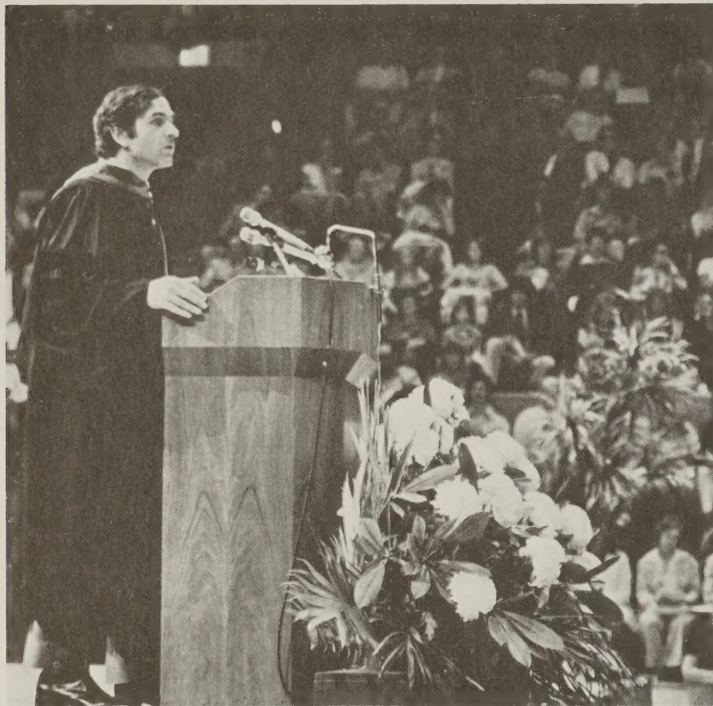

James Sarpolis, a 1971 graduate of Broome Community College, has been re-elected president of the BCC Alumni Association. His term is for one year.

Other officers elected by the organization are vice-president Francis Short and treasurer James Caverly.

Short was re-elected to his position while this is the first time that Caverly has been an officer of the association. Caverly, incidentally, is the assistant basketball coach at BCC, where he teaches in the business program.

The Board of Directors of the association consists of the three above-named new officers, along with Dorothy Combs, Shirley Kilker, Sue Pierce, Robert DiNunzio, Thomas Franchina and Michael Vanuga, who is also co-chairman of the Broome County Bicentennial Committee.

Grads Share the Limelight with Sorrentino

Judge Joseph N. Sorrentino during his commencement address at the BCC graduation.

Graduation speaker Judge Joseph N. Sorrentino was one of the reasons the 1977 commencement exercises were among the best ever held in Broome Community College's 31-year history. The graduates themselves constituted another.

They created a happy and informal mood for the proceedings, as BCC President Peter Blomerley had correctly predicted in his brief but interesting remarks.

"Something will happen before the end of the evening to ease the tension of the formality of this occasion," he said. "I don't know what, but I just know something will happen."

The graduates were a responsive audience throughout, reacting enthusiastically not only to Sorrentino's message but to the remarks of the other speakers as well.

They had party noise poppers and confetti, and two graduates at the end of the academic procession wore the respective words on their back of their gowns — THE END.

The graduates entered the Broome County Veterans Memorial Arena with some of them wearing unique headwear — plastic hard hats by the Civil Technology graduates, including one high roller who stacked three of them on his head and kept them there during the ceremonies. The Medical Laboratory Technology graduates fashioned paper crowns that proclaimed "Super Lab Tech."

And the Radiologic Technology graduates each wore a letter on their caps to spell out "X-ray Technicians Know All the Positions."

Sorrentino lived up to his reputation as a fine speaker, and his message was on a wave length the graduates could tune to. And they did. So did the older people in the audience — the parents, relatives, friends and guests — about 4,000 altogether.

Sorrentino's background as a Brooklyn street gang member, as a prison inmate and as a dishonorable dischargee from the Marine Corps gave his message a unique perspective of authenticity. He spoke from his own experience.

He told the graduates to reach down to the deepest level of their own promise and not be satisfied with what he called the "mass self." Don't be afraid to make a unique statement, remembering though that "nothing unique comes easy."

"You have to run some risks to do a good job; nothing is accomplished by playing it safe."

In that connection he cited his decision to make a unique statement, when he was called on to speak at graduation as the valedictorian at Harvard Law School at age 29.

"I could have played it safe, but I decided to make a unique statement," he said. And that statement catapulted him into the national spotlight, as TIME Magazine called it the best graduation speech of that year.

He received his best ovation of the evening when he pointed out that the most scientific test yet devised does not measure one's drive, determination or heart. And he stressed the importance of these qualities in the ultimate success of an individual in life.

Sorrentino had made a remarkable turnabout in his own life, when he finally made a self-determination that he did not want to spend the rest of his life plucking chickens, eating blood as a boxer and picking up droppings, all of which had been among the 30 unskilled jobs he

894 Graduates Put BCC Total over 12,000

Graduates in the BCC Radiologic Technology program line up in the proper order, so that the letters on their caps can be read to form the words, "X-ray Technicians Know All the Positions."

Oldest in Class of 1977 Is 64 Years of Age

There were 894 graduates in the Class of 1977 at Broome Community College to bring to more than 12,000 the number of graduates through the years at State Tech, then Broome Tech and now BCC, as the college has been variously nicknamed.

State Tech, of course, was short for the New York State Technical Institute of Applied Arts and Sciences, which was the college's first name in 1946. Then it was mercifully changed to Broome County Technical Institute in 1953, when it became a community college and was nicknamed Broome Tech.

That name stuck through the next official name change to Broome Technical Community College in 1956. When the word "technical" was dropped in 1971, the name became Broome Community College and the nick name BCC.

The graduating class this year again exemplified the diversity that is characteristic of community college student bodies. For example:

- The ages ranged all the way up to 64 years old.
- There were mothers who returned to college after raising families, like Dorothy Anne Van Housen who has seven children.
- Sons and daughters of BCC graduates followed in their parents' footsteps.
- Among the graduates were Kim McManus, daughter of Broome County Executive Donald L. McManus; Nancy Libous, daughter of Binghamton Mayor Alfred Libous; and Jane Husebo, wife of Vestal superintendent of schools Raymond Husebo.

Jane was also one of those who had raised a family and returned to study nursing. She did very well, too, graduating with High Honors and a 4.00 cumulative grade point average for all courses at BCC.

• 6 graduates earned two degrees — Sherrie Brennan, Ronald Kernekian, Jack Barletta, Mary O'Neill, Francis White and Robert Wickman.

• 6 others received a second degree, having successfully completed the Joint Degree Program at BCC and Harpur College. They were Alan Bergman, Margaret Boardman, Joseph Bolan, Joan Greenberg, Nancy Perkins and Cynthia Keefe.

15 Graduate with 4.00

A total of 15 graduates completed all their courses at BCC with straight "A" 4.00 averages. They were:

Hans Weil, Michael Chambala, Thomas Clover and Laurie Reed in Accounting; Jane Husebo, Meryl Stark and Cynthia Sumper in Nursing; Suzanne Erle and Joseph Sinchak in Liberal Arts.

Also Steve Ferranti in Industrial Technology, Renee Raychel in Business Administration, David Elliott in Electrical Technology, Jane Moore in Medical Record Technology, Joseph Bolan in Engineering Science, Deborah Simmons in Radiologic Technology.

3 Receive Alumni Assn. Scholarships

The BCC Alumni Association gave three scholarships to graduates of the Class of 1977. These were announced at the commencement exercises and the announcement came as a surprise to the recipients, as well as to everyone else in attendance.

Renee Raychel, Joseph Sinchak and Rebecca Gracin were the recipients of the annual Alumni scholarships of $200 each to help these graduates continue their higher education toward their baccalaureate degrees. James Sarpolis, president of the Alumni Association, made the announcement at graduation.

Around the Campus

The campus was the site for an unusual happening on April 24 when the students in the BCC Theater Company performed three one-act plays with the playwright in the audience.

He is Leonard Melfi, the Binghamtonian who has made good as a playwright on Broadway, and he said he enjoyed the performance immensely. Then he and the cast members spent the rest of the evening together informally at Morey's to make it a memorable experience for the student actors and for Melfi.

George Ferrari, who had been serving as acting dean of health sciences, suffered a mild attack in May. He has been taking it easy this summer (though working hard at losing weight), and he expects to be back for full duty in the fall as chairman of the Biological Sciences and Medical Laboratory Technology Department.

Judith Cahill has resigned from the Board of Trustees because she moved out of town. She served for 2½ years.

Faculty Moves — William Nichols in Chemical Technology has retired, and David Kenien and Dennis O'Day in Mechanical and Civil Technology resigned to join the NY State Electric & Gas Corp. Kenien was at BCC for 9 years and Nichols for 7.

Ben Kasper has moved from the History and Government Department to become the assistant director of financial aid.

Senior Citizens Day on campus in May attracted more than 400 of these fine people. Educational workshops, health clinics, entertainment and lunch were featured, as the event was co-sponsored by BCC, the Broome County Office for Aging, and Action for Older Persons.

The college also conducted a special "Seniors Teaching Seniors" program to prepare these older New Yorkers to teach their peers about consumer affairs and problems at various senior citizen centers in the area. The program was funded by a federal grant.

The college thanks Lucia Sprague of Calicoon for her thoughtful gift of photographic printing paper, worth more than $500.

She is a retired teacher of art and photography in Calicoon, who has recently decided to end 40 years of operating a photo studio in Calicoon.

Having heard many good words about Broome Community College from former students through the years, she said she decided to give this paper to the college. She even delivered it, driving it to the campus in her station wagon.

A mini tour to Stratford, Ontario, the Shakespeare capital of North America, is set for Aug. 26-28. See 2 plays, "As You Like It" and "All's Well That Ends Well." The deadline to register is July 25. Call the BCC Mini Course for details.

Academic Awards

A total of 35 Broome Community College students were honored for academic achievements during the recently completed semester.

The awards were given by off-campus agencies, societies and organizations who give annual recognition to BCC students for outstanding performance in their particular fields of study.

The award winners and the donors:

The American Society for Testing and Materials Award to Nicholas Scalzo.

Association of Educators in Radiologic Technology in NY State Award to Deborah Simmons.

Broome County Chamber of Commerce Awards to Mary O'Neill and Richard Wall.

Broome County Dental Society Awards to Kim Hartford and Dorothy Hart.

Broome County Medical Society Award to Barbara Dodd.

Broome County Republican Women's

— About the Alumni —

J. Richard Shiel, the Democratic Party's candidate to run for mayor of Binghamton this fall, is an LA 1964 graduate of BCC.

Alan NeJame (LA-76) is the youngest member of the Johnson City School Board.

David Michalak (LA-73) has written, directed and produced a full-length movie that he calls "The Return." It was filmed in color in Broome County with a cast of about 35, and it took two years to complete.

It's a science-fiction movie that deals with the effect of technology on the human spirit, and it was shown this spring on the BCC campus.

Joseph Machata (MT-49) is now working as a senior mechanical inspector for the Memorex Corp. in Santa Clara, Calif.

Maurice Battisti (LA-66) and BCC trustees Dr. John A. Manzari spoke on behalf of community colleges when the State University Board of Trustees conducted a public hearing at SUNY Binghamton this spring. They made convincing presentations.

Brother Fran Battisti (BT-68) was named to the 1977 edition of Outstanding Young Men of America.

Arnold Cohn (MT-61) is now a lawyer in Houston, and his brother Irving (MT-67) is an industrial engineer with Woodward Furniture in Austin, Texas.

Scott Woolsey (LA-72) will have his art work shown at the Cedar Gallery in Port Dick this summer.

Ronald Bors (PE-62) has been named manager of budgets and forecasts for NY State Electric & Gas in Ithaca.

Ben Bartoletto (EH-71) graduated with distinction from the National College of Chiropractic in Chicago with a B.S. in Human Biology and a doctorate in Chiropractic.

Edward Fabrizio (MT-54) is now a senior engineer in the design and build support center at IBM Endicott.

Ronald Campbell (MT-63) is now a mechanical design engineer with Texas Instruments in Dallas.

Lynda Helmer (LA-73) is program promotion coordinator for WSKG-TV.

BCC Expands Program Offerings

BCC has added a number of new program opportunities for this fall — for full-time and part-time students, for associate degrees and for certificate and diploma achievement.

They are:

- A General Business program for the Associate in Applied Science degree. Starting this fall, BCC will give this as a special day program for a particular group of students — for those who have acquired baccalaureate degrees with an intention to teach.

But since the teaching market has shrunk in the last few years, BCC has adapted this General Business degree program to the needs of this group of students.

The adaptation has been done in such a way that students should be able to acquire the AAS degree in one academic year of study plus one summer, because they will be given credit for many courses taken during their baccalaureate years.

The purpose of this offering is to enable this group of students to become employable in the business field, in which there are many opportunities.

- A certificate program in General Office will be launched in the fall during the day. This will be given by the Secretarial Sciences Department and is for part-time or full-time students to prepare them for jobs that require some office skills but not necessarily an associate degree.

- A diploma program in data processing will be offered in the daytime, as well as in the evening — again for part-time or full-time students. This is also to prepare people for positions that do not require an associate degree, and it brings this offering to day students for the first time. It has been given in the evening for a number of years.

Students can use that as a stepping stone into the associate degree program in accounting or business administration.

It's a Winning Spring In Baseball, Tennis, Golf

The BCC Hornets were again regional powers in baseball, finishing the season with a record of 21 wins and 10 losses. Unfortunately, the final loss came against Hudson Valley in the first round of the regional tournament and eliminated the Hornets.

It was a streaky season for coach Ed Daub's players, as they lost their first three games and then put together two winning streaks of four games each and another one of seven games before the final setback.

Shortstop Rob Krowiak and centerfielder Mark Farrell were chosen to the all-regional first team, with catcher Jeff Beckwith, second baseman Brian Ficarro and third baseman Tom Duffy receiving second team nods.

Krowiak batted well over .400 and Farrell drove in 42 runs in the club's 31 games. Joe Mickel was the leading pitcher on the club, winning 6 and losing once.

The tennis team also enjoyed a good spring, winning 9 and losing 3 dual matches and finishing second in the regionals. Dave Troisi was unbeaten in 11 singles dual matches, Don Rosics and Dick Farrell won 9 of 12.

The golf team had a 7-4 won-lost record, with 31-year-old Jerry Stephens averaging under 80 for the season.

Obituaries

MICHAEL H. MORANVILLE became a licensed pilot after his 1973 graduation from BCC, and he was killed in May when the plane he was piloting developed engine trouble near Clarksburg, W. Va.

He was 23 years old and is survived by his parents, Mr. & Mrs. William Moranville of Vestal, and his paternal grandmother.

DUANE J. STOLARCYK died in June at age 26 after a long illness. He is survived by his mother, Wanda Stolarcyk.

Duane was a 1970 graduate of the BCC business program and lived in Johnson City.

THOMAS W. TURSKI of Endwell passed away in April at the age of 30. He is a mechanical technology graduate of BCC, Class of 1967.

He worked for the New York State Electric & Gas Corp. and was a veteran of the Vietnam War. His survivors include his wife Diane, his parents and two brothers.

He was buried in Rotterdam, N.Y., near Schenectady.

FRANK WHITE died suddenly in June. He was 44 and is a 1977 BCC graduate in business. He is survived by his wife Doris and 3 sons and 3 daughters.

A veteran of the Korean War, he and his family have been living in Harpursville.

STEPHEN R. SIRSEN died in June at the age of 42. He lived in Johnson City, is a 1955 graduate of BCC's technical office program, and worked for the New York State Electric & Gas Corp. He is survived by his parents.

VIVIAN PALMER, who graduated in 1975 from BCC's Child Care program, died in June at age 47 after a long illness, and she is survived by her husband Glenn, two sons, three daughters and her mother.

She was director of the Riverside Drive Nursery School and had developed a reputation in the community for her work in the nursery field.

Dick Baldwin To Coach Again

Dick Baldwin, who has coached basketball at Broome Community College for the last 30 years, has announced that he plans to be back at the Hornet helm next season.

His announcement ends much speculation on the BCC campus and in the community that he may retire from coaching.

BCC Still Accepting Enrollments for Fall

Openings Exist In All Except 3 Programs

Three of the health science programs at Broome Community College are filled up for the fall semester, but the college still has room and is accepting applications in the 21 other degree-granting curricula.

These are in the business field, health sciences, engineering and engineering technology, and liberal arts and sciences. People thinking about enrolling for the fall should not delay any longer. By getting in touch with the college's Admissions Office, they can assure themselves of a place in this fall's Freshman Class.

The three curricula that have stopped accepting applicants are in Dental Hygiene, Radiologic Technology and Medical Laboratory Technology.

Some of the 30 foreign students enrolled at BCC during the past academic year in Prof. Herbert Church-Smith's class "English as a Second Language."

Economic Impact

amazed to see that if the college were not here, County Government would not save any tax money and county business would suffer the loss of over $16,000,000 in sales.

"Add the long-term economic benefits and the positive educational effects, and you see what a great asset Broome Community College is to the community."

Joe Gay Named Dean of Curriculum

Joseph K. Gay, dean of health sciences at Broome Community College, has been named dean of curriculum starting with the fall semester.

He recently returned to the BCC campus after an 18-month leave of absence without pay to carry out a federally funded assignment at SUNY Binghamton for the State University Research Foundation.

He will continue as dean of health sciences at BCC for the rest of the summer and assume his new duties when the fall semester starts August 29.

As dean of curriculum, he will be responsible for program development and evaluation, accreditation of the college's curricula, remedial and non-traditional programs, and international education.

Acting dean of business Robert Cann and acting dean of science and engineering technology Edward Dougherty will return to teaching in their respective areas. George Higginbottom will continue as dean of liberal arts and Gino Canale is still the dean of continuing education.

In other recent administrative changes at the college Jon Lewit has become the director of the Computer Center and James Thompson has transferred from the Business Division faculty to the Computer Center, replacing Lewit who replaced David Cope-land who took a job in Michigan.

required. Up to now, full legislative approval was needed. The college retains the right to hire at the minimum salary levels.

- The college may now decide for itself how to spend its money for buildings and grounds equipment, supplies and similar funds. It still may not make transfers or adjustments in personnel, fringe benefits or capital projects, which account for about 85% of the budget.

- The college president now has administrative authority over grants coming to the college. It had been necessary for each grant to be approved by the County Legislature.

- The college president and trustees can now authorize sabbatical leaves, provided they are to be used for advanced study in the faculty member's discipline.

- The college administration and trustees agreed to serve on the negotiating committee for faculty contracts and to provide monthly reports on transfers, personnel changes, monthly appropriations ledgers and monthly revenues.

The county reserved the right to hire the auditor who will conduct an annual audit of the college's books.
